

Which company should I contact for solar power generation installation

How do I choose a solar installer?

When choosing a solar installer, evaluate the company's credentials and specific offerings for your home. The best solar companies typically have at least five years of experience, strong manufacturer partnerships, and proper certifications, including North American Board of Certified Energy Practitioners (NABCEP) certification for installers.

Do you need a certified solar installer?

Spending a few hours researching installers can save you thousands and ensure decades of reliable performance. The North American Board of Certified Energy Practitioners (NABCEP) is the gold standard for solar installer certification. Only certified professionals should design and oversee your installation.

Should I talk to a solar installer?

"It's important you talk to an expert, and that you understand that this is essentially an open heart surgery for your house," said John Wagner, head of sales at Custom Solar Solutions, an installer based in Atlanta. Ultimately, you'll have questions unique to your property and your project.

Do solar installers rely on subcontractors?

In some cases, solar installers rely on subcontractors to perform some, or all, of the work for your solar installation. It's a common practice industry-wide, but make sure your installer is upfront with you about who will be completing the work on your home.
